A warm welcome to IIC’s 29th Biennial Congress in Wellington, Aotearoa New Zealand. IIC congresses continue to be a major event in the conservation calendar. Some have a particular nuance brought about by their location or theme, with Vienna 2012, London 2008 and Melbourne 2000 (in which I had a hand) all bringing back memories of happy collaborative moments as a profession. Then there are those congresses which for their subject can be seen as important milestones for the profession: Baltimore 2002 for paper, Los Angeles 2016 for contemporary art, and Ottawa 1994 and Turin 2018 for preventive conservation, all spring to mind.

Our 28th Biennial Congress in 2020 in Edinburgh had to pivot to an entirely on-line conference due to the COVID-19 pandemic. We had hoped when we announced the 29th Biennial Congress in Wellington that by 2022 we would be meeting in person again. Whilst that is not fully the case, we have landed on a hybrid model providing both access to those who can physically reach Wellington and those who will be on-line.

Aotearoa New Zealand has a vibrantly diverse culture shaped by both European and Māori influences, some of the complexities of which were intended to be explored in the conference theme of Conservation and Change: Response, Adaptation and Leadership.

Anchored around this theme but reflecting experiences and learnings from around the world, the selected papers deliver a picture of the diversity of work that conservators are involved with. If there is a common theme it would be change, and increasingly change not in a periodic way but near constantly. With that change comes opportunities for innovation, and additionally for ensuring the sustainability of the work we do and the world we live in.

What has not changed is the quality and depth of the papers and posters. Under the expert eyes of the Technical Committee assembled for 2022, a rigorous process of peer review and editing has once again been employed. One author has commented that they have never been through such an intense review and how fruitful it has ultimately been for her paper. My thanks to the Technical Committee for the hours and hours of work involved and in particular to the Committee Chair Isobel Griffin, and to the Editorial Committee chaired by Joyce Townsend for editing the papers and overseeing the content of the posters to be hosted online, on IIC’s website.

IIC welcomes you to our 29th Congress in Wellington, and the next milestone in our profession’s development.

Julian Bickersteth

IIC President
We're delighted to see you online and in-person!

On behalf of IIC Council and New Zealand Conservators of Cultural Material: Pū Maanaki Kahurangi, we are delighted that the congress is taking a hybrid format this year, promoting a more sustainable and 'climate friendly' event.

Our aim is also to make the congress an accessible and inclusive event for all through online international programming, including through our 5 regional live hubs offering simultaneous translation of live sessions into 20+ languages, a first for IIC. We are also looking forward to the Keck Award celebrations and Forbes Prize lecture, the IIC Dialogue, special tours and local in-person events, online meetings, and networking – all whilst celebrating and sharing in the unique culture and heritage that Aotearoa New Zealand has to offer.

We want to extend a heart-felt and special thank you to Tru Vue Inc. as headline sponsors of the Congress and to the Getty Foundation for their continued support of IIC and funding for the IIC Congress Scholars programme. Our thanks also to our local sponsors for their support. This Congress is again a testament to the support and commitment of a truly remarkable group of people and organisations.

Without your unwavering support this congress would not have been possible.

On behalf of the local organising committee, we look forward to sharing some very stimulating and interesting days together.

We Believe:
The conservation profession gives all our lives richness and meaning by preserving the diversity of our cultural heritage and our own and others’ cultural identity.

The Purpose of IIC:
Our purpose is to follow through our original founding principles, and work consistently to recognise and promote the conservation profession.

Our Approach:
The way we do this is by bringing together conservation professionals from around the world within a shared and independent arena, educating, enabling and recognising excellence.
Our unique position and how we make a difference to the profession

IIC was established in 1950 by a group of men and women who witnessed dramatic events during WW2. They were involved in saving many internationally important historic and artistic works from being lost forever. They became known as the Monuments Men.

We know many of them as our Founding Fellows.

The purpose of IIC is based on our original founding principles: recognising and promoting the conservation profession.

This commitment drives everything we do – from our intellectually stimulating Congresses to activities specifically tailored to capture the imagination and curiosity of students of conservation.

Our Studies in Conservation records and publishes the latest developments in the field, our enquiry-led Dialogues host discussions and the development of new ideas, our Awards recognise and celebrate the greatest achievements in our field and promote the work of conservation professionals for the common good, and our highly sought after Fellowships and Honorary Memberships acknowledge the status and contribution of the highest achievers within the profession.

IIC is a charity, and our important work is made possible by our supporters and a range of independent sources of funding including membership fees, fundraising events, congresses and publications, sponsorship and partnerships.

Supporting the Profession and a New Generation of Conservators

IIC is its members and what they contribute. Three dedicated funds have enabled conservation to flourish in new places – as well as helping to launch new careers. We also rely on the voluntary support of members to allow the IIC’s breadth of work.

Please visit www.iiconservation.org to find out more about volunteering and to make a donation to The Keck Fund, The Brommelle Memorial Fund and The Opportunities Fund. You can also contact the office directly:

The Forbes Prize Lecture traces its roots to 1958, when a Forbes Prize Fund was set up at the Fogg Art Museum, Harvard University, USA, to which financial contributions were made in recognition of Edward W. Forbes’s services to conservation. The fund was to be administered by IIC to provide a prize for outstanding work in the field of conservation. It was agreed that the accumulated funds should be awarded in the form of a fee for a Forbes Lecture at the 1961 Rome Congress, and that Harold Plenderleith would be a suitable recipient.

A Forbes Prize Lecture has been given at each subsequent IIC Congress; the list of recipients is given below.

Harold Plenderleith (Rome 1961)
Paul Coremans (Delft 1964)
Rutherford J. Gettens (London 1967)
Arthur van Schendel (New York 1970)
Helmut Ruhemann (Lisbon 1972)

The Keck Award

In 1994, the IIC Council announced the establishment of the IIC Keck Award, generously endowed by Sheldon and Caroline Keck to commemorate their shared lives of distinguished achievement in conservation. The award is presented every two years at the IIC Congress to - in Caroline Keck’s words - the individual or group who has in the opinion of the Council contributed most towards promoting public understanding and appreciation of the accomplishments of the conservation profession.

The results of the 2022 Keck Award will be announced during the Closing Ceremony of the Congress. This year we are including a public vote for 10 nominations as follows:

- Bali Art and Heritage Conservation Internship Program #BAHCIP (Indonesia)
- Conserving the Collection (India)
- Creating a Regional Heritage Centre in Guatemala – CERPA (Guatemala)
- Game Jam for Conservation: Learning to conserve cultural heritage through play (Mexico)
- In the time of pandemic: Community participation in the daily inspection of heritage (China)
- Open Clock Club (UK)
- PictóricaTaller (Mexico)
- Restoring the unattended monuments: Saving the chivas and chaityas of Nepal (Nepal)
- Unveiling the mural painting art of Almada Negreiros (1938 – 1956) (Portugal)
- Zanzibar Stone Town Heritage Society: Community Engagement Programmes (Tanzania)

Past winners of the Keck Award:

1994 Simon Cane for the ‘Stop the Rot’ exhibition at the York Castle Museum.
1996 Gaël de Guichen for ‘Media Save Art’ and the Williamstown Art Conservation Center for ‘Altered States’.
1998 The Conservation Centre at National Museums & Galleries on Merseyside in Liverpool.
2000 SOS! Save Outdoor Sculpture programme.
2002 No award was made in 2002.
2004 Andreina Nardi for the ‘Aperto per Restauro’ project.
2006 The Mariners’ Museum for the USS Monitor conservation project.
2010 The ‘Painting Techniques of Impressionism and Postimpressionism’ project organised by the Wallraf-Richartz Museum and Fondation Corboud in collaboration with the Cologne Institute for Conservation Science at the University of Applied Sciences in Cologne.
2012 The Acropolis Museum in Athens, Greece, in collaboration with the Institute of Electronic Structure & Laser at the Foundation for Research and Technology in Crete (IESL-FORTH) and to Anglo-Saxon CSI: Sittingbourne in Kent, UK.
2016 Natural History Museum London, UK for The Blue Whale Project.
2018 Rode Altarpiece in Focus: the conservation and technical analysis of the altarpiece of the high altar of St. Nicholas’ Church, Tallinn.

Students and Emerging Conservators
(including recent graduates)

Student participation in IIC has always been welcomed, and we are always delighted to continue to offer new ways for this to take place. Conservation Students and Recent Graduates have enhanced IIC and its Congresses in many ways.

Student Posters

This now well-established section of IIC Congresses provides a peer-reviewed platform for research and work on conservation projects that is being undertaken by students and recent graduates. This is a great opportunity for those who are starting out in the conservation arena to take part in conservation’s international showcase. As well as the display of student posters, there is an opportunity to meet with student authors during the poster sessions being held online only on –

Tuesday 6 September, 9am (BST/ UK time)
Thursday 8 September, 7pm (BST/UK time)

Héctor J. Berdecía-Hernández is an Architectural Conservator-Restorer and the Founding Director-General of the Centro de Conservación y Restauración de Puerto Rico (CENCOR). He is also an Adjunct Professor in Preservation Technology and Historic Building Materials Conservation at the Graduate Program in Architectural Conservation and Rehabilitation at the Polytechnic University of Puerto Rico. He received his MSc in Historic Preservation with a concentration in Architectural Materials Conservation from the University of Pennsylvania in 2020, a Bachelors in Environmental Design-Architecture and a B.A. in History from the University of Puerto Rico, and attended joint Conservation Science courses within Georgetown University and the Università degli Studi de Firenze. His teaching and research focus on the history of traditional building technology and the conservation of historic building materials, particularly masonry mortars, concrete, and cementitious materials. He currently serves as Co-Communications Officer, Secretary and Lead Editor at the American Institute for Conservation’s Emerging Conservation Professionals Network Board (AIC-ECPN), is an associate member of the International Council on Monuments and Sites–ICOMOS committees on Training and Modern Heritage, the American Institute of Architects (AIA), the Association for Preservation Technology International (APTi), and an elected member of the College of Young Practitioners of the International Network for Traditional Building, Architecture & Urbanism (INTBAU).

Meaghan Monaghan (chair) is responsible for the conservation of paintings in the collection of the Art Gallery of Ontario. She earned a BA in Fine Arts with minors in Biology and Art History from Mount Allison University. In 2010 she received a Master of Art Conservation from Queen’s University. Before joining the AGO Conservation Department in 2017, she served as Assistant Conservator of Contemporary Art at the National Gallery of Canada; Andrew W. Mellon Fellow at the Walters Art Museum, Baltimore; Samuel H. Kress Fellow at Statens Museum for Kunst, Denmark; and Postgraduate Fellow in Painting Conservation at the Yale University Art Gallery. Meaghan also held internships as part of her conservation studies at the Canadian Conservation Institute, Australian Museum, and Owens Art Gallery. She has been the Student Poster Committee Chair for the 2016, 2018 and 2020 IIC Congresses.

We are grateful to the student poster committee for providing guidance and support to students and recent graduates this year.
Kate Berlewen recently graduated from the MSc in Conservation for Archaeology and Museums at the UCL Institute of Archaeology in early 2022, where she also completed the MA in Principles of Conservation in 2019. Kate's research interests include conservation of archaeological objects, inorganic materials including ceramics analysis, and disaster response conservation. As part of her final year of training, Kate undertook a work placement with the Royal Albert Memorial Museum, Exeter, and has also volunteered at the Petrie Museum of Egyptian Archaeology, Norfolk Museums Service, and Royal Museums Greenwich.

Guilherme Dias is an emerging professional based in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. He holds a bachelor’s degree in Art Conservation from the Federal University of Rio de Janeiro (UFRJ), and is currently a first-year student in the Master’s Program in the Preservation and Management of Cultural Heritage in the Sciences and Health, Oswaldo Cruz Foundation (FIOCRUZ). His research interest navigates from conservation of photographs collections to instrumental analysis, and has presented in 2020’s IIC Edinburgh Congress his research on using ATR-FTIR for identifying photographic processes. Since 2020 he is a Conservator of Photographs at the Instituto Moreira Salles, a major institution in Brazil responsible for preserving Brazilian heritage in Photography, Iconography, Music and Literature.

Lauren Burleson is an objects conservator specialising in remedial treatment of historic organic objects especially from natural history, social history, medical history, and ethnographic collections. She has strong experience in and passion for exhibitions and conservation project management. She is currently a conservator at the Natural History Museum in London, and has also worked at the Science Museum and the University of Cambridge Museums (Museum of Archaeology and Anthropology and Museum of Classical Archaeology especially). She completed her MA in the Conservation of Archaeological and Museum Objects through Durham University in 2020, graduating in January 2021 with distinction. Lauren presented a poster on the formation of copper soap corrosion in a Saudi Arabian face veil at the 2020 IIC Edinburgh Congress, and in late 2021 won the Nigel Williams Student Prize for her conservation of progressed glass deterioration on blue beads in a human bone Rus rGyan ensemble.
IIC is pleased to announce a new Congress Scholars 2022-23 programme, ‘Adapt: leadership and conservation in a time of change’ to start at the IIC Wellington Congress this September. The programme will develop leadership potential among 30 mid-career conservation professionals from emerging economies.

Funded by the Getty Foundation, the programme will enable participants to develop skills, confidence and resilient networks to take their career to a new level. It will also offer space to reflect on the future of the profession and what leadership in conservation will mean in coming decades as we face big issues arising from the pandemic to the climate emergency.

Creating a diverse network of future leaders across the world

The programme is designed to connect and support a diverse group of people develop the skills and confidence to take on leadership roles, giving more equitable access to career development than has been the case in the past. For this reason, the programme will be entirely online with participation for conservation professionals in emerging economies including IIC priority regions for South America and Caribbean, Africa and South-East Asia and South Asia. All selected participants on the programme will receive a stipend of £200 to support taking part and a digital access grant of £100 to help with connectivity.

Launching at our IIC Wellington Congress 2022

The programme will be online and kick off at IIC’s hybrid Wellington Congress 2022, which takes place between 5 – 9 September. It will include a series of online Regional Live Hubs by world region where Adapt programme scholars will be able to network and discuss recent and future developments in conservation within their own time zone, in the company of major figures from the profession.

A lively interactive online course with masterclasses/workshops, mentoring and action learning

The programme will then run from September 2022 – May 2023 averaging a commitment of four or five hours per month, and with a variety of engaging live events with course leaders, small groups, mentors and coaches. By the end participants will be equipped with new networks and contacts, new insights into their own leadership styles - plus a certificate of participation.

- Masterclasses/Workshops, backed by online resources to develop leadership skills and confidence

- Small group meetings based around an ‘action learning’ model, in which 6 – 8 people regularly share real life challenges, and use them to generate fresh ideas and perspectives.

- 1-2-1 support to develop personal learning plans with a leadership coach

- Mentoring opportunities with a highly experienced mentor from the IIC Fellows’ network

- Free participation in the IIC Wellington
  Congress 2022, including access to all materials from the event for 12 months

Each participant will spend roughly 4-5 hours per month on Action Learning and 2 hours (with 2 hours of self-led study) at each online masterclass/workshop, spread over nine months, backed by additional mentoring and coaching sessions. This rounded format means that each IIC Congress Scholar will have time to gain a depth of understanding, paced to fit around other commitments.

The result will be a prestigious Continuing Professional Development, which each scholar will be able to use to enhance their own careers while contributing to an international programme, shared experiences, and greater connection to the conservation profession in their local context.

Getty Foundation

This programme is made possible with support from the Getty Foundation through its Connecting Professionals /
Sharing Expertise initiative.
Live and online from Wellington
Tuesday 6 September, 4.30 to 6.30pm (NZST)

A recording will be made available to all registered for the Congress following the event on our dedicated IIC Congress site.

Join Māori conservators Rose Evans, Tharron Blomfield, Kararaina Te Ira, Erina McCann and Jade Hadfield for a discussion of the issues and themes that have influenced and affected their careers in conservation.

The panel discussion moderated by Curator Māori Alexander Turnbull Library, writer, journalist, broadcaster Paul Diamond (Ngāti Hauā, Te Rarawa, Ngapuhi) will touch on topics such as working with taonga, carrying māturanga overseas, the impact of historic trauma, ethical responsibilities to community, what you don’t learn at university and the blockages that there can be in the profession.
The panellists for the dialogue include:

Rose Evans

Rose Evans (Te Atiawa, French and Welsh descent) is an objects conservator and Director of Objectlab Ltd, a heritage consultancy based in Auckland, Aotearoa New Zealand, having specialized in the conservation of Maori and Pacific taonga and contemporary sculpture across a range of institutions from Te Papa Museum of New Zealand (1990-2005) to the British Museum (2002).

She has worked in a range of cultural governance roles such as a Board member of the Arts Council of Creative New Zealand and Te Maori Manaaki Taonga Trust, and is the recipient of both a Getty Fellowship (2002) and a Winston Churchill Fellowship (2009).

Jade Hadfield

Jade Hadfield |Ngāti Kahungunu, Ngāti Whātua o Kaipara, is a conservator and curator living in Narrm | Melbourne, and has over twelve years’ experience at leading cultural organisations, including Te Papa, ICCROM, The Koorie Heritage Trust, Museums Victoria and currently at the State Library Victoria. Jade has utilised her conservation training to help in the return of her hapū Pou Tipuna and their ongoing care. Jade draws on her upbringing of being immersed in te ao Māori to centre Indigenous ontologies and epistemologies, flip dominant narratives and experience in the cultural sector to increase diverse representation and build capacity for Pasifika in Australia.

Erina McCann

Erina McCann is a Rongowhakaata, Ngāti Ruapani wahine from Tūranganui-a-Kiwa |Gisborne, Aotearoa New Zealand, with over thirteen years’ experience working in the cultural sector in Aotearoa New Zealand and Australia. As a trained conservator living on the unceded lands of the Bunurong/Boon Wurrung Peoples in Naarm | Melbourne, Erina works from a Te Ao Māori lens, consulting across diverse heritage communities, to embed intercultural practices and create space for community-centric and collaborative conservation and cultural collection care practice in Australia and across the moana.

Kararaina Te Ira

Kararaina Te Ira He uri au o ngā tūpuna mai ngā waka ō Tainui, Te Arawa, Kurahaupō, Takitimu me Tokomaru. Ko Kararaina Parerohi Rāhui Te Ira taku ingoa. Ko te mahi tautiaki tāku nei whainga roa.

I mahi ahau i roto Aotearoa, ki tā wāhi hoki, hei hāpai i ngā kaupapa tūhonohono ki waenganui ngā taonga me ngā hāpori. Otirā, ko te oranga o ngā taonga ā iwi, tāku tino mahi. Ko te mahi penapena taonga, te mahi tiaki taonga, āku nei pūkenga matua.

Kararaina has a firm connection to her whakapapa in both Te Ika a Maui (North Island) and Te Waka a Maui (South Island). After training as an art historian, Kararaina transitioned into cultural material conservation, obtaining her master’s degree in conservation from the University of Melbourne, focusing on textiles and objects. In her capacity as a heritage professional, Kararaina has worked with numerous arts, cultural and heritage institutions throughout New Zealand and abroad, with a notable example including Rauru, Māori meeting house displayed in Museum am Rothenbaum of Hamburg. Kararaina has curated numerous exhibitions in New Zealand where women have been the central focus. In her 2018 Govett-Brewster Art Gallery/Len Lye Centre exhibition, she explored the cross-section between astronomy and female narratives. Additional projects include the permanent exhibition at Puke Ariki, titled Ko Taku Poi te Manu, which explores wāhine Māori and their practice of poi as a cultural tool to transmit political and historical messages. Kararaina is now the director of Hokitika Museum after working as Senior Adviser for Protected Objects where she established in 2019 the new framework for the Conservation of Taonga Tūturu Programme. Kararaina continues to operate Penapena Taonga, an independent conservation practice that has been operating since 2016.

Tharron Bloomfield

Tharron Bloomfield is a Māori Heritage Advisor for Heritage New Zealand. He has previously worked as a Curator and Conservator in New Zealand, Australia and the United States.
Edvard Munch, "The Scream"
As shown at the MUNCH Museum, Oslo
"... an icon of modern art, a Mona Lisa for our times"
Arthur Lubow, journalist and art critic

Lighting an icon?

The precision of the ERCO Eclipse spotlight with framing lens means Munch’s famous work can shine with just 25 lux on a dark background.

Optical performance, curated brightness ratios and Casambi-controlled lux exposure times make lighting the curator’s conservation weapon.
