Adapting heritage preservation
to future challenges

NKF-Danmark has the pleasure to invite proposals for the upcoming 23rd Triennial NKF Congress, which will be held in October 2024 at The National Museum of Denmark, Copenhagen.

The Congress title is: Resilience: Adapting heritage preservation to future challenges.

Our wish is to set focus on preservation ethics, practices and goals in a rapidly changing world. We would like to offer space for discussion on resilience in conservation and of the conservation profession; how the field adapts to changes in climate and biodiversity, international political structures, colonial dynamics and other contemporary issues. Furthermore, we would like to broaden the discussion on how heritage preservation can contribute to a change of conduct amongst people, institutions, and society.

The 23rd Triennial NKF Congress aims to showcase the newest research topics in heritage preservation in the IIC-Nordic Group and likewise invites international researchers to bring their knowledge to northern Europe. We believe in the importance of inclusion and sharing with our communities and gaining new perspectives from it. Therefore, we encourage interested speakers worldwide, with background not only in conservation but other heritage-related areas, and expertise within the theme of the congress, across gender and gender identities, age, religious and ethnic background, to submit an abstract on one of the topics below: Resources & sustainability.

Keywords: Humans as a resource, interdisciplinarity, sustainable practices in architecture, conservation, archaeology, and environmental conservation Co-creation & collaboration.

Keywords: Interdisciplinary collaborations, inclusion, traditional practices, representation, ownership, responsibility, volunteering Conflict & care.

Keywords: Repatriation and representation, decolonization, recovery, emergency response, raising awareness Change & persistence.
