Job Details

We are looking for a conservator to join our team at an exciting and busy time. As an objects conservator you will undertake remedial conservation of artifacts in our laboratories, working for our clients on a range of materials and objects, including social history and archaeological items. You may also be required to visit other sites to deliver training and workshops, carry out surveys and give advice about conservation priorities and procedures.

You will also be responsible for documenting all conservation work according to appropriate standards and creating detailed reports. You will be required to provide expert advice and support to clients and colleagues regarding conservation proposals, treatments, and collection care.

Our ideal candidate will hold a qualification in Object Conservation with experience in both interventive and preventative conservation of objects, including social history and archaeological collections. You will need good communication skills and be able to work safely in a laboratory environment. A strong knowledge of conservation policies and practices will be essential, along with the proven ability to plan and organise your own work.
